1. Prior to early 1951, from 1,000 to 1,200 Polish infantrymen were quartered in the Moltke Kaserne, Glatz (P 51/H 34). The unit had about 100 teams of horses and a few motor vehicles. Weapons observed with the unit included German and Soviet rifles, assault rifles of German origin, submachine guns, Soviet light machine guns with drum magazines, heavy Maxim machine guns, and Soviet mortars, including some of 120-mm. Each unit of company strength included one mortar platoon. The soldiers carried gas masks with hoses. *
2. The electric bakery of the Moltke Kaserne baked the bread for the Glatz military post. About 1,200 loaves of bread of 4 pounds each were produced daily. In addition to the unit in the Moltke Kaserne, a UB (Security Police) office and a Militia office, both on Zimmerstrasse, an office in the former post headquarters on Ring, and offices in the fortress (Donjon) and in the provincial prison on Gruenestrasse were supplied with bread.

3. [REDACTED] knew of a former Nachrichten Kaserne at the post, but was unable to identify its occupants. Many field-grade officers were at the former post headquarters on Ring. **

25X1A * [REDACTED] Comment. The report confirms previous information on the location and personnel of the Moltke Kaserne, [REDACTED]. The infantry units are probably the 27th Inf Regt of the 10th Inf Div.

25X1A

25X1A  [REDACTED] Comment. No Nachrichten Kaserne is known in Glatz and no German signal troops have ever been stationed there. In addition to the Moltke Kaserne, another barracks installation, also occupied by infantrymen, is located on the road to Neudeck. [REDACTED]
